

What are the biggest challenges most organizations face in sustaining exceptional service?

Their biggest challenges by far will be eliminating the mindset that service excellence should only be reinforced at the bottom, with line staff; looking for results without doing all that is necessary to close the gaps; not holding employees accountable to the service philosophy; or moving on to the next "trendy" idea before fully implementing the service excellence initiative.